TRISTAN DA CUNHA'S MAIL.

HAS YET TO LEARN OF MARNE BATTLE.

One hundred and three British subjects, self-exiled on a lonely isle in the South Atlantic, are esgerly swaiting their Treasure Ship, which will steam from London in a few days, says a recent Weekly Disputch." They are the inhabitants of Tristan da Cunha, and it is so far off the besten, track that they have not heard officially from the Motherland for ten years, but now a ship has been chartered to visit. the island and take mails. The Colonial Office and other friends of the islanders are sending them comforts and stores, and at the offices of the Crown Agenta for the Colonies (who are packing and despatching the goods free) there have been busy scenes the past few days. The "gifts are chiefly of a practical value, and include soap, which is greatly in demand In Tristan da Cunha, rope, dungaree for making clothes, boots, rice, ours, medical supplies and sails.

The women exiles are not forgotten. and a good supply of hairpins and other necessities will bring joy to the belles of Tristan.

The only flag the islanders are said to have to prove their allegiance to the Empire is a red ensign, and the Colonial Office is sending out a brand new Union Jack. There are sure to be hearty cheers in the lopely settlement when the new flag arrives and is unfurled.

Although Tristan de Cunha has had no official mail for ten years, th islanders have not been without news of the outside world all the time. Sailing ships which get off the beaten track occasionally make a point of regulating their chronometers there, and the natives put off in their bosts to exchange goods and pick up the news. They have had a visit of this sort in the past two years, so they know that Europe is in arms, but these 103 exiles have still to learn of the battles of the Marne, the Falkland Isles, Verdun, Jutland and the death of Lord Kitchener.

REVENUE ORDINANCE.

FINES TOTALLING $2,000.

A case which has been many times postponed, says the Singapore Free Press, at length came before the senior magistrate, Mr W. Langham Carter, on the 11th inst. when sixteen charges were preferred against Mr Kenneth A. Stovens manager in Singapore for Messra Caldbeck, Macgregor and Co. These were as to being in possession of intoxicating liquors contrary to the provisions of section 24 (2) of the Liquor Revenue Ordinance, and the delivery of false or incorrect requisitions relating to the importation of these liquors. These, fifteen charges in all, were grouped into five cases, and a sixth case was made of the last charge, which was as to failing to give the Government Monopolies

Counsel went on to detail the circumstances leading up to the charges, and the responsibility resting on such firms as the defendant's accurately to make certain returns to the Monopolies Department, including the facts as to "breaking down" liquor of a certain percentage under proof, thus increasing its quantity. It might be said that it was unfair to make a number of a charge in respect of what was

They were the losers by reason of sales as to which entries were found in the book of sales to apparently fictitious persons, and by the forfeiting of the liquors which must follow conviction, this alone representing some $6.000 and this alone representing some $6,000, and being in itself a heavy penalty for them to bear. FIGHTING SHY OF FOOD.

A choice between starvation or torture is the dismal prospect before all victims of indigestion, for although they are actually in need of food to nourish the body, they are afraid to eat because of the long periods of pain and discomfor that follow even the lightest of meals. The urgent need of all dyspeptics of everybody, in fact, whose organs of digestion are unable to perform their important duties, is to gain strength at that the stomach can extract even form that the stomach can extract good from the food taken. Pain after eating is the way the stomach significs its protest that it is too weak to work; to take purgatives is only to aggravate the mischief. Now strength is given to weak stomachs by Dr. Williams Rink Pills. because these Pills enrich and purify the blood supply. This is the natural process of giving strength and tone to the stomach and it accounts for the many cures of indigestion and stomach disorders that are due to Dr. Williams

ANNIVERSARY OF THE REVOLUTION.

The " Peking Gazette" of the 13th inst. contains the following interesting account of the President's review of the Troops on the fifth anniversary of the close their doors. Republic.

The fifth anniversary of the revolution, which took place at Wuchang under the leadership of President yamens. The "holiday was universal. Thousands and thousands of people visited the Tienanmen and Chienmen and rast with that of a year ago when the monarchist movement was at its height and every endeavour was made by th Yuan Government to suppress the feeling that surged in the hearts of the people? This year attempts were made to throw the Central Park open to the people without admittance fee but it was soon secured. found that this was impracticable. The mark was so packed full of people in the early hours of the afternoon that it was necessary to block the gate for a time The only remedy was of course the sel ing of tickets as usual. In the evening fire-works were displayed in the Park and entertainments were the order of the day Tea shops and restaurants did good busi-So also the rickshaws and carriages. General Tuan Chi-jui, Minister of War and his able staff must be congratulated on their remarkable ability in managing the review would begin a little after nine o'clock, many of the visitors rose early for the journey to Nanyuan. The journey was however most enjoyable as the rain on the previous day had watered down all the dust and rendered the new road soft but not muddy. Approaching the front gates of the city one was at once -attracted by the unusual number of police and soldiers lining the broad roads and the already large crowd packing the side walks. Outside of Chienmen the scene was even more lively. The sidewalks were densely packed with eager people waiting for the arrival of the President on his way to the review. Squads of coldiers were posted at various points along the road, which was already lined by police and soldiers at intervals of about five paces: Red lanterns were hung all the way from Chienmen to the Yungtingmen strung from pole to pole, the line of which was, broken by the inevitable pailou." Additional safety was provided for the President in the form of police standing on roof-tops in the suburbs of Chienmen and Yungtingmen. To make the roads as clean as possible within the short time available and at the least expense possible yellow earth was sprayed all along the route, in imitation of the method used in former times. earth.
